14 A.	On 13 September 2019, the Insurance Benefit Illustrations for Long Term has taken effect from 23 September 2019 with a 12-month transition period ending on 22 September 2020 with respect to certain requirements as set out in the Guideline (with early adoption encouraged). The specific requirements for illustration documents for ILAS policies are set out in Appendix I to the Guideline. What are the requirements and arrangements in respect of revisions to existing SFC-authorized ILAS illustration document templates that are made solely pursuant to Appendix I to the Guideline?	As from 23 September 2020, ILAS issuers are required to adopt the ILAS illustration document templates in compliance with the requirements set out in Appendix I to the Guideline. Prior approval would not be required from the Commission in respect of revisions to existing SFC-authorized ILAS illustration document templates that are made solely to reflect the requirements set out in Appendix I to the Guideline. Nevertheless, ILAS issuers must file the revised ILAS illustration document templates with the Commission within one week from the date of adoption. A filing letter (which is available via: https://www.sfc.hk/web/EN/files/PCIP/Illustration_document_templates/ILAS_Illustration_Doc_Filing_Letter.pdf), together with all requisite documents as set out therein, must be completed and submitted. Furthermore, each of the revised ILAS illustration document templates must be marked up clearly when filed with the Commission to show all changes made against the latest version authorized by the Commission. The Commission will post-vet the revised ILAS illustration document templates in a vigilant manner to monitor compliance. Where the Commission identifies any issues of non-compliance with Appendix I to the Guideline, appropriate actions will be taken promptly. Issuers are strongly reminded that it is their responsibility to ensure the revised ILAS illustration document templates are in full compliance with the requirements set out in Appendix I to the Guideline, the Handbook (including the ILAS Code) and other applicable requirements that may be published by the Commission from time to time. As a general reminder and for the avoidance of doubt, where there are any changes to the ILAS illustration document templates (in addition to those reflecting solely the requirements set out in Appendix I to the Guideline) dte off from the

- 3A. For a regular premium high protection ILAS categorised as Protection Linked Plan (PLP), can an ILAS issuer charge a higher platform fee (net of bonuses) per year (when compared to its comparable alternative product) in early years? What is the expectation on the platform fee level?

The SFC adopts a principles-

	Question	Answer
		In addition, the average platform fee in early years is generally expected not to be higher than (i) the highest industry average charge for the Services of other non-ILAS regular premium high protection insurance products (i.e. 2.4% p.a. of the account value currently) or (ii) similar charges of the ILAS non-ILAS regular premium high protection insurance products if lower. In this connection, ILAS issuers should provide the charge for the Services of their own non-ILAS regular premium high protection insurance products for reference, where applicable. ILAS issuers are generally expected to conduct separate fee assessments isolating cost of insurance and platform fee given the level of life insurance protection offered by different ILAS.
Complex product features
6.	Can the SFC give some examples of product features of ILAS that are considered to be unduly complex?	ILAS issuers should determine whether a product feature under ILAS is unduly complex or not based on the factors as set out in the Additional ILAS Guidance. Below is a non-exhaustive list of examples (which will be updated from time to time) of ILAS product features that are considered to be unduly complex. • Multiple account structure (e.g. initial account and accumulation account); • Charges based on committed premiums (e.g. administration charge as a percentage of initial annual premium at policy issuance); • Investment option additional charges⁷ (e.g. charges deducted and reflected in the net asset value of an investment option); • Complex fee calculation including multiple variables or complicated formulas based on information not readily available to investors; • Complex bonus calculation and clawback mechanism (e.g. bonus with unnecessary complicated adjustments and conditions); and • Unit allocation for rider premiums.

		Given that the provision of Advisory Service is not a part of the ILAS product features, the ILAS offering documents should not contain disclosures relating to such service, the related service fee and its payment arrangements. Accordingly, to safeguard the interests of the investing public, issuers of new ILAS authorized under the enhanced requirements in the Additional ILAS Guidance will be required to refrain from engaging in any of the following arrangements in relation to their ILAS: i. providing any service advising on, or choosing or managing, investment options available under the ILAS to any Hong Kong investors (i.e. the Advisory Service) for a fee or other remuneration; ii. introducing, promoting or recommending any Advisory Service provided by any intermediary; and iii. deducting any fees for such Advisory Service payable to any intermediary from the ILAS policies.
